I still reach for you each morning
But you're up and dressed
You got no time for hanging around

As I run to light the stove
You say don't bother
I can get my coffee
Somewhere downtown

And you're gone before I know it
You don't even wait to get
My goodbye kiss at the door
You don't need for anything anymore

You've been working hard and got
That big promotion you deserved
But that was two weeks ago

If I hadn't overheard it
At the supermarket yesterday
You know I still wouldn't know

Lately, you don't come to me
With anything that's good or bad
The way you used to before
You don't need for anything anymore

You don't want me for anything
You don't ask me for anything
You don't need me for anything anymore

I make supper just for me
Because it seems you're always tied up
You come home late each night

And then we go straight up to bed
You turn your back and you're asleep
Before I've turned out the light

And I lie there in the darkness
Always wanting you and crying
Oh, what am I living for

You don't need for anything anymore

Oh, you don't want me for anything
And you don't ask me for anything
You don't need me for anything anymore
