It's three o'clock and I'm still underneath every cloud over me and every face that I pass on the street says you will be loved without me And then you say, It's hard to love when I'm the one left standing hard to smile without a change of pace I just lost myself in the daze It's hard to miss what i can't hold on to and try to keep what i can't embrace it don't leave much left for the space Now all the hope and all the fear and everything we built this year is breaking down around us now and falling with your perfect tears If love could lift us over everything all we need's a set of wings I used to know every crease in our sheets and how you'd feel underneath and every sound that you make in your sleep so who's the stranger here beside me And then she says, I know you wanna go but you just can't blame me I'm the only one here by myself I'm the one that put my life on the shelf I'll never understand why you can't be with me you never slow down never save yourself tell me was it worth it tell me it helped Now all the hope and all the fear
and everything we built this year is
breaking down around us now
and falling with your perfect tears
Now all the hope and all the fear
and everything we built this year is
breaking down around us now
and falling with your perfect tears
If love could lift us over everything
all we need's a set of wings
If love could lift us over

All we need's a set of wings I's three o'clock and I'm still underneath every cloud over me
Now all the hope and all the fear
and everything we built this year is
breaking down around us now
and falling with your perfect tears
If love could lift us over everything
all we need's a set of wings
If love could lift us over
All we need's a set of wings
Now all the hope and all the fear
and everything we built this year is
breaking down around us now
and falling with your perfect tears
If love could lift us over everything then all we need's a set of wings
all we need's a set of wings
