I woke up early from my bed,
With a secret in my head;
In the back of my backyard,
I keep a spaceship in the shed.

I lit the engines and took the sky,
From up here it looks so nice;
I didn't stop until the moon,
Where I picked a flower just for you.

And I fell down to you,
In a parachute of newspaper, rubber bands, tape and
glue.
So you would see that I would do anything for you,
Anything for you.

I didn't want to wake you up,
So I put the flower in a cup.
On the floor next to your bed,
Without a sound I laid my head.

Drifted off into a dream,
About what's been and what could be.
I saw your tears, I saw you fall;
But I saw us rise, yeah I saw it all.

And I fell down to you,
In a parachute of newspaper, rubber bands, tape and
glue.
So you would see I would do anything for you,
Anything for you.

And I never want you to know,
All of the lengths I'll go,
To find where the flowers grow.

Love is never supposed to be,
A present under our tree,
I do it because I believe.

I fell down to you,
In a parachute of newspaper, rubber bands, tape and

glue.
So you would see that I would do anything for you,
Anything for you, anything for you.
