I should have told you all I wanted was to have some fun but you wanted me to be the permanent one yes you did
Now when we're in the movies or the back of a car you always stop me when I go too far I should have known you'd always keep me waiting for those wedding bells
those wedding bells
Oh we could talk all night but you won't understand (don't leave me in the lurch today) the only words you want to hear are "Do you take this man?" (in church today) Does the lull in conversation mean the penny's droppin' you should have known that I was only window shoppin' it's my clumsy way of sayin' that we should be stoppin'
those wedding bells
those wedding bells
I'm like a square peg in a round hole I don't belong here baby don't need a fanfare or a drum role to tell you baby

I don't belong to you baby Oh you say it's not important but I know what you're thinkin'
'cos every time we kiss I feel your kisses stingin' In the back of my mind I know you'll always be ringin'
those wedding bells
those wedding bells
I knew I should have told you all I wanted was to have some fun

(that was yesterday) but you wanted me to be the permanent one (say yes today)
Oh I'd do it but the pleasure isn't worth the pain we'd run out of track before we got on the train can't you hear the sound of heartstrings snappin' under the strain of those wedding bells
those wedding bells
those wedding bells
those wedding bells
