When the tide is high
I remember your kiss of goodbye
As the wind and sea hit the bay
It was then that our love washed away

When the tide is low
I recall how you wanted me so
Not a cloud could be found in the sky
And our love never threatened to die

Your lips were mine to kiss
And your arms warm
Whoever thought that this
Could turn into a storm

[VERSE 4]
But the tide had changed
And you acted so differently strange
Then you suddenly said goodbye
And without ever telling me why
Now you're gone
And the tide is high

Your lips were mine to kiss
And your arms warm
Whoever thought such bliss
Could turn into a storm

[Repeat VERSE 4]

Now you're gone
And the tide is high
Now you're gone
And the tide is high

(Now you're gone)
(Now you're gone)
(Now you're gone)
