(G.Kooymans - Dayglow music)

oh believe me it's not true

The rainbow hides no treasure and there ain't no mixture that will give you back your youth

No mystic machine that makes the sand turn to gold

Like there ain't no magic word that holds you back from getting old and I break it in my hands

I catch a branch

Like you broke my heart

oh I still can't understand

No mysterious mixture

Only time will bring peace to me and can heal the wound you've made now I just hate

No more lies, no more rainbow treasures

Oh I'll break up and I give it all up

No more fairytales, no more games for me

It's my life, my life, a pleasure

There's just a little bit of peace in my heart

There's just a little bit of happiness I'll part

and I break it in my hands

I catch a branch

Like you broke my heart

oh I still can't understand

can heal the wound you've made

and now I just hate

Only time will bring peace to me

Oh I'll break up and I give it all up

No more lies, no more rainbow treasures

It's my life, my life, a pleasure

There's just a little bit of peace in my heart

There's just a little bit of happiness I'll part
When will I learn to stop wondering why

The time rolls by, the days go by Despairing I'm going down on my knees I'm begging, begging, begging, oh please

There's just a little bit of peace in my heart
There's just a little bit of happiness I'll part
