crows ravaging a field of wheat stars jealous of the moon scarecrows know their own defeat envy and the heart that it consumes today i walked without you like an empty bottle drifting out to sea i would change it if i knew how to but it don't come that easily if my heart wasn't such a jungle maybe you wouldn't feel so all alone and if your heart wasn't such an ocean i wouldn't sink like a stone if you weren't so far from me i could you hold you while you're sleepin and hear ya breathin softly and be there when you wake phone calls cannot complete us letters cannot replace the miles and miles and miles between us another time another place

and if your heart wasn't such an ocean

i have yet to meet another who burns bright as you i'm not looking for any other i only want you.

and if your heart wasn't such an ocean
i wouldn't sink like a stone.
