You said you'd light a candle and you'd say a prayer for me

Well I feel the light has dimmed and gone
And half the world is begging while the other half steals

Oh where did everything go wrong?

Well some days I can't believe

Others I'm on my knees

Trying to be heard

I was your anger and you were my fear
and now that it's over, of course it's so clear

But you were no angel and I was no sin

But somehow I can't let it go, can't let it go

Half the world is sleeping while the other half dreams

You close your eyes and then you're gone

And maybe my intentions have been misunderstood

I know you feel so beautifully wronged

Some days I can't believe

Others I'm on my knees

Hoping I belong

I was your anger and you were my fear

And now that it's over, of course it's so clear

But you were no angel and I was no sin

But somehow I can't let it go, can't let it go

And laughter is my soul's release

But we're not smiling anymore

And can't we try to win this peace?

'Cause we're never gonna win, never gonna win this war

I was your anger and you were my fear

And now that it's over, of course it's so clear

But you were no angel and I was no sin

But somehow I can't let it go, can't let it go
