Here, as the last line opens the first time
I've decided to take some care.
It's not all that easy, fighting the part of me
That would shrink and disappear.

But they're killing us off, one by one
And this land locked lake is going to flood.
The rapid streams would take anything.

I've been far too nice to take you down so I apologize to myself.
What was right has been corrupted by the sunrise
Not forgotten despite hard times in this battle for the nice guy.

What more can I say, it has been this way for years.
Respect is delusion and tongues have been loosened.
Well, this wide assault on my senses
Has left me course and defenseless.

But they're killing us off, one by one
And this land locked lake is going to flood.
The rapid streams would take anything.

I've been far too nice to take you down so I apologize to myself.
What was right has been corrupted by the sunrise
Not forgotten despite hard times in this battle for the nice guy.

Out with the old weak cry-in the-street kind of mentality.
You took us all for granted; you made us what you to wanted us to be Without our teeth, and now we're chewing on your lies.
And if the hopes of others for you is simply not enough,
You're fed up with this game cause it's just too...

I've been far too nice to take you down so I apologize.

I've been far too nice to take you down so I apologize to myself.
What was right has been corrupted by the sunrise

nice
This battle for the nice guy.
