Maybe it's the rain that's swaying all of my opinions
But with every step you take, they seem rehearsed and unforgiving

Could you rehearse that pickup line one more time?
And show us what you've really wanted, what you've really wanted.

It's the stare that draws us from the beginning
But a first impression's never lasting if it can't carry on till night is over

Who could understand the way she moves when everybody's watching? I can't make out any words that she's trying to tell me

But her pages read like every magazine she's ever followed

When makeup's down the drain, to her that stare means nothing

Oh, can you picture what it's like to be first in line, with all of them watching from behind? Looking forward, now press rewind

Back to when a kiss could mean the world

And such a simple thing could change the way you viewed your life when you held on to everything

Another hour has passed so grab a drink

Well maybe we could find a safer place for you to sleep where you'd feel nothing

It's the stare that draws us from the beginning

But a first impression's never lasting if it can't carry on till night is over

But her pages read like every magazine she's ever followed.

Hey, don't blush because it can't help too much. This new image must be confident

And we all can assure you'd feel much better if someone drove you home tonight

Can we take you home tonight?

Who could understand the way she moves when everybodys watching, who could understand the way she moves round.

Who could understand the way she moves when everybodys watching, I can't make out any words that she's trying tell me.

But her pages read like every magazine she's ever followed

When makeup's down the drain.

It's the stare that draws us from the beginning.

But a first impression's never lasting if it can't carry on,

it's the, it's the stare that draws us from the beginning

but a first impression's never lasting if it can't carry on.
