Dressed up a moon lit night,
I see stars in your eyes,
Your body language tells me that
It's time to leave this place behind

No destination found,
Cheap talk all through the town,
We sing out loud but I don't hear the song
It's what I hear instead, cause I've got you in my head.

The sunrise in your eyes,
It's hard to say goodbye,
Just one last time want to keep you by my side,
Your face sets and the orange fades to gray,
Your a teenage drama queen,
Cause your so seventeen.

Stay with me take my hand,
I'll help you rise above,

If only you could understand what
It's like to be in love.

The sunrise comes so fast
It's like time just flies by,
If you were to blink just once
You'd see an orange sky

The sunrise in your eyes,
It's hard to say goodbye,
Just one last time want to keep you by my side,
Your face sets and the orange fades to gray,
Your a teenage drama queen,
Cause your so seventeen.

(CHANT)

We were old enough to know better
But not young enough to know better
But not young enough to care
