Do you feel like your own home
Is a castle made of sand?
Trying to hold on
Before it slips right through your hands
You breathe in and breathe out
But the air is stretched so thin
You're thinking it out loud
If you could just get back again
And no one's there

There comes a time when you realize
The past is over
There comes a time when you decide
That your life has just begun
There comes a time when you will say
That it's undiscovered
There comes a time, there comes a time

How do you scream out
When no one else is there
You're trying to reach out
You're throwing punches in the air
Where will they find you
When there's no where else to go
Trying to see through all the lines that start to show
And no ones there

There comes a time when you realize
The past is over
There comes a time when you decide
That your life has just begun
There comes a time when you will say
That it's undiscovered
There comes a time, there comes a time
