Three red burning candles,
Two glasses of red wine.
She hopes that he remembers
It's already after nine.
Shadows dancing on the table makes such a lonely sound.
She finds comfort in the light,
and she'll be up all night burning candles down

He never bought red roses he said faded they will turn so he bought her pretty candles, and swore his love would always burn.
But it's hard holding on to someone you can't put your arms around.
So, she finds comfort in the light
and she'll be up all night burning candles down

Sometimes her tears start falling like a pouring rain but she's weathered this storm long enough to know there's shelter in their love where even death can't touch the flame

Three red burning candles,
Two glasses of red wine.
Tonight she will remember 1999.
The last time that he kissed her and whispered my love, I can be found Somewhere in the light
So she'll be up all night burning candles down.

He's somewhere in the light
so she'll be up all night burning candles down
