Voices slide down off the mountain
Sunlight turning red
Falls on the earth and it spreads
Even the families lower their heads as they ride

Age old faces of the mountains looming naturally
I wonder if they're looking at me
Their monumental eyes I can feel

In the glow of the twilight
The thought of home
Reminds me now I'm reaching out to you
Anything I can do to be safe and warm
In your arms

All I have from the heart of you

I'd meet you anywhere in the country

Or anywhere on the sea
All over the world it could be
I would follow you with the heart of me

Love calls echo in the valley
Dreams come true tonight
Remembering you hold me tight
In tomorrow morning's light I will find you

When I awoke
The stars were out
And shining, shining for you and me
All I ever want to be is safe and warm
In your arms

All I have from the heart of me
All I have from the heart of me
