

Graveblankets "The Half I Saw"

Visit "The Half I Saw" on MotoLyrics.com

I first saw her face on a silver screen
It was a matinee, a european
I kept returning for at least ten more shows
Then I followed that film 'round until it closed

Someone else should've been thinking for me
They would've said an actress only gives you half the story

The half I saw was more than enough
The half I saw was almost too much

I joined her fan club boy did I ever feel young
I couldn't stop myself I was so badly stung
I found out where she lived I quit my job to find
This flicker in the dark I couldn't leave behind

Someone else should've been thinking for me
They would've said an actress only gives you half the
story

I went to santa barbara and tried to find that girl
But no one can ever tell you it's impossible...

I hitchhiked home and I got my old job back
I had to take their shit I had to watch them laugh
Now I spend my nights in front of my t.v.
I finally figured out just what she means to me

No one else has to do my thinking for me
I want my actress to just only tell me half the story

The half I saw was more than enough
The half I saw was almost too much

Visit Graveblankets page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.