Everything is different
Everything has taken its toll
Everyone around me crowds in
But we all feel alone

Everything is so hard
The walls are closing in on my soul
I wish I could get back to that time
Me and you, Jackson Road

After all the years that I've seen fade away
All the good times gone to waste
I'd give anything, anything at all
To get back to all the roads we never paved
All those nights down by the lake
I'd give anything, anything at all

And I said, oh anything at all
And I said, oh anything at all

Just another sunrise
Crowded by a city losing hope
It's time I said goodbye
To the phony smiles and the puppet shows

Everything we held tight
In the end forced to let it go
I wish I could get back to your breath
All the little things let go

After all the years that I've seen fade away
All the good times gone to waste
I'd give anything, anything at all
To get back to all the roads we never paved
All those nights down by the lake
I'd give anything, anything at all

(Anything)
No, no, anything at all
(Anything)
Oh, I'd give anything at all
(Anything)

No, no, anything at all
(Anything)

Everything is different
Everything has taken its toll
Everyone around me crowds in
But we all feel alone

Everything is so hard
The walls are closing in on my soul
I wish I could get back to that time
Me and you, Jackson Road

After all the years that I've seen fade away
All the good times gone to waste
I'd give anything, anything at all
To get back to all the roads we never paved
All those nights down by the lake
I'd give anything, anything at all

And I said, oh anything at all
And I said, oh anything at all
And I said, oh anything at all
And I said, anything at all
