Hold me inside
This asylum speaks of home not so far away
Through the window I see people scurry from the rain

It's not too late
To reach your hand
To spare a Drowning Man
And even if you decide a place to hide
Your shadow stays always at your side
Tonight
Harmless in the distance

Through the current
There overcomes this certain faith that's swept away
Replacing trust
Is hardly in your grasp as the picture fades

It's not too late
To reach your hand
To spare a Drowning Man
And even if you decide a place to hide
Your shadow stays always at your side
Tonight
Harmless in the distance

I can't help you now
You're none of my concern
You only fuel the fire
Regret inside you burns
And even if you decide a place to hide
Your shadow stays always at your side
Tonight
Harmless in the distance
