Month of May yet the sky is gray it's just another day
Since you're gone away and I think of you
All the rain would wash out the pain
And I thought in vain that joy would remain when I think of you

Time goes by and I never forget
And I think of you
Friends would say I may always regret
When I think of you

Latter-day seems to fade away I see some children play
And I start to pray not to think of you And now the rain plays a sad refrain on the windowpane
As I try in vain not to think of you

Time goes by and I never forget
And I think of you
Friends would say I may always regret
When I think of you

A lovers walking hand in hand
Running as fast as they can remind me of you
Those who believe that hearts can mend
And are together till the end remind me of you

Latter days now has gone away when it finds its way
Till the break of day as I think of you
Still the rain seems to cry in pain with that same refrain
As I try again not to think of you

Time goes by and I never forget
And I think of you
Friends would say I may always regret
When I think of you (x2)

A lovers walking hand in hand running as fast as they can remind me of you
Of those who truly can content that their lover is their friend remind me of you
