you say you'll never be a beauty queen you'll never really understand love you always have been far too skeptical of it you never will be much like me we're orbiting from different places we don't even agree on what life consists of though you generally aim to please you never leave a fight until it's over though you never leave a man at ease you'd never leave alone a wounded soldier but for a moment here we are i know it's not your style but for a moment you are beautiful he must have opened up your eyes and love must have broken through so you're going to take him back again you're not about to give up on him just yet and when he leaves you for another woman he'll leave you with a love you'll never forget
