by Nanci Griffith

You can cuss the daylights out of this pale winter moon
And we can ponder every reason why your true love was untrue

You can cry your eyes out, I've got a shoulder here for you

And every day your broken heart's gonna turn a lighter shade of blue

Chorus:

Cause anyone can be somebody's fool

Oh look at me, I once was a fool for you

So you know it's true

Anyone can be somebody's fool

Down in this lonely town there's a lovely silver frost

So we can stop and have another round for the true love that you've lost

It's gonna take a little time before your emptiness grows old

And underneath that silver frost you've still got a heart of gold

Maybe when this winter's over

You're gonna walk knee deep in clover

And your heartache around the corner

You're gonna feel brand new
