

Groove Coverage

"All That Matters"

Visit "All That Matters" on MotoLyrics.com

Once I thought that life has darkened deep,
There was a light that I could barely see.
Nothing true but lying dreams were filling me
Driftin' all alone on my empty blue sea.
What is life worth living when you're all alone?
I don't wanna be the one to rest here on my own.

All that really matters is you're leading me to see
That all that really matters is that I'm loving me for me
That nothing really matters, but illusions coming true
And all that really matters is you.

Once my thoughts of life were battles in my mind
But such as war it was no healing-helping fight
All the up's and down's are suffering my life
Are just revealing there's a deeper sense to find
There are still some scars and wounds that weary me
I cannot find the trust to be made whole again.

All that really matters is you're leading me to see
That all that really matters is that I'm loving me for me
That nothing really matters, but illusions coming true
And all that really matters is you.

There are still some scars and wounds that weary me
But I have found the trust to be made whole again.

All that really matters is you're leading me to see
That all that really matters is that I'm loving me for me
That nothing really matters, but illusions coming true
And all that really matters is you.

Visit Groove Coverage page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.