So many things left unsaid between us, but I hope that you know the things you did left me with a faded sense of decay, the ghost you became to haunt my life follows me every day
I still hear your voice, whispering in my ear I've regretted this since the day you turned my love to fear

As I dig deeper, I find myself seeking an embrace of loyalty that doesn't yet exist I can still feel the scars that you left I can still feel them in my head the air becomes cold when your ghost is near look at what you've done, stay away from me

I am the Haunted

this after all I did for you, you killed all your dreams this after all I did for you, just stay away from me you're just a ghost, you're just a ghost hiding on the inside where they say true beauty lies I can't seem to find happiness in anybody else, the love I gave to you was taken in distress, and kept with the dust on your shelf

Is it enough If I told you how I feel about the ways you turn me on I called out your name, you said you felt the same, but your actions speak louder than words I have but one thing to ask

Did you come back to haunt me, or to make amends?
