these words we sing are the words of the broken the world will hear our voices and we pray that you remember us our demeanors are as sacred as those we hold in our hearts we have left a thousand memories, we have seen a thousand lies these revelations may be our last endeavor, to be heard we must break free from the night this is who I want to be, there's nothing that can be said that can stop me

I will not hide I will not fear all these failures so get up, get up, get up, and see beauty in the nightmares and your dreams see the light fighting the dark, and make the stars reveal their gleam

we seek to break free from the multitude we seek to rip this veil from the sun, and show it in all its glory for the likes for the thrill of what's bringing me down, you stand in the dark where you won't make a sound, I will speak for myself when I say this is not where I belong save your words of wisdom they are not welcome here

I have stood by many atrocities but I will not stand for this you say we belong in the dark? step into the light, show me your teeth.
I am the Destroyer and I am here to show, all that glitters is not gold

that can stop me

these words we sing are the words of the broken, the world will hear our voices.
