(Spoken)

How could you do this to me?
Why did you hurt me?
I trusted you I cared for you
And I waited for you
But you never came
Now I'm so numb from all the pain

It's hard to breathe with the tension in this room
It's hard to tame the envy that is burning
I can't believe the extremes to which I'm going
How do I unlearn pain when pain is all I'm knowing?
It's too hard I can't make it why can't I disappear
The pain just overtakes me though there's freedom in my tears
All of these things will never be the same your words vanish I can't stand this
I will always hear your name

I'd rather be far from here
Than close to where it hurts
And surround myself with strangers
Cos everywhere is lonely
On a New York City train
I'm just another passenger
And all of my pain
Blends with the graffiti on the wall

It's hard to dream when the nightmare's in your face
I can't stand to hear my voice echoing in vain
How can you forget the cause of all this pain
I can't control the damage done to my soul
'Cos it's too hard I can't take it why can't I disappear
The pain just overtakes me though there's freedom in
my tears
All of these dreams will never be the same
Your words vanish I can't stand this
I will always see your face

I'd rather be far from here
Than close to where it hurts
And surround myself with strangers

Cos either way it's lonely
On a New York City train
I'm just another passenger
And all of my love
Blends with the graffiti on the wall

(Spoken)

You'd think if I was far away
You'd think if I was far away, I wouldn't feel this way

Bridge:

I can still see you
I can still feel you
Everywhere I go you won't leave me
Words are deceiving they keep me believing
That you can just fade from my memory
Oh graffiti take me far away
Take me far far away
So far away

(Spoken)

Your memory
It just follows me
I can't get away from you
God how can I love someone like you?

(Spoken)

Don't call me anymore
Don't come back to me thinking that everything's just gonna be the same again

'Cos everywhere is lonely
On a New York City train
I'm just another passenger
And all of my pain blends with the graffiti

I'd rather be far from here
Than close to where it hurts
And surround myself with strangers
'Cos either way it's lonely
On a New York City train
I'm just another passenger
And all of my love blends with the graffiti
On the wall
