Soon the daylight will come, then it will be gone
For now the wicked control the void in my soul
Doubt is ruling my mind, and
I found out nighttime awakens the beast inside
Flee the recurring dream that's haunting me

Silent the night awakens me
With the song of an evening breeze
Open my eyes but I can't see
And all motion seems to freeze

Question the roots of reality
But the notion seems so real
Trapped in a state no-one can flee

Soon the daylight will come, then it will be gone
For now the wicked control the void in my soul
Doubt is ruling my mind, and
I found out nighttime awakens the beast inside
Flee the recurring dream that's haunting me
And you

Nightmare awakens the fear in my heart
In a never-ending theme
Feel insanity rising up in me
How do I know it's a dream?

Even the man who is pure in the heart
And speaks in prayer by night
May become the wolf when the wolfs-bane blooms
And the winter moon is bright

Silent the night awakens me
With the song of an evening breeze
Open my eyes but I can't see
And all motion seems to freeze

Question the roots of reality
But the notion seems so real
Trapped in a state no-one can flee

Soon the daylight will come, then it will be gone
For now the wicked control the void in my soul
Doubt is ruling my mind, and
I found out nighttime awakens the beast inside
Flee the recurring dream that's haunting me
And you

When the night conquers all I can see
And my soul yearns to be set free
Time to be remembered what used to be
And to wonder who used to be me
