You said I just crossed 6th avenue
Looked like I hoped that they would keep driving And it's true halfway through of my crossing to you I thought about dying
But it was just a passing thought
Everyone did what the streetlights were signing

CHORUS

Still I thought of relaxing after the impact Feeling weightless in fact
From the hood of a taxi cab
I'd have the sensation
Of flying
Rising above you
Over the traffic on 6th avenue

Sometimes I'm so invisible
With ten million faces around me
And then when I see you across 6th avenue I'm glad that you found me
Still it was just a passing thought
Everyone did what the streetlights were signing

REPEAT CHORUS

Sometimes I miss the train
Sometimes I meet a stranger
And then we share a cab and then she makes me laugh and forget what I lack and about the impact and I start to relax and I have the sensation
Of flying
Rising above you
Over the traffic on 6th avenue
