(Skip Ewing/Mickey Cates)

I got in from work just a little bit late

After fighting with the traffic and the people on the interstate

Then I had an altercation with the washing machine

So by the time that you got home I guess I was a little mean

And you and me got into a terrible fight

And we started up yellin' at each other 'til late last night

You crashed on the couch about half past two

And I woke up this morning thinking who needs you

Chorus:

Who needs you stealing my covers

And taking up half the bed

Who needs all the crazy things you do

Who needs you and all of your lovin'

No matter what I might have said

I'll give you just a little clue

I'm feeling mighty sad and blue

'Cause I'm the lonely fool who needs you

So darlin' wipe the sleep out of your eyes

Wake up and let me apologize

I never should have said those things to you

Now I swear that I still care

And not a single word was true

Let me get your favorite coffee cup

Here's the cream now sugar can we please make up

We're not due at work for an hour or two

Why don't you lay back down and let me show you just

Who needs you

Repeat Chorus
