Thank you for walking
Thank you for spending one day
With a stranger

Good morning, hello, choose a color, carnation
Well, walk along

Down round the pond, up the hill bricks and steeples
It's not all gone, I recall

Thank you for walking
Thank you for spending one day
With a stranger

Thank you for talking
And showing the way to a stranger

Wining and dining from bags by the river
A sun, sail, song

We sat on a wall rest our feet
Touch our noses then slow poke on, oh, I recall

One red carnation, the color for April
And apples and wine

I suppose it was white
But I needed the rhyme

As I packed up to leave oh, I noticed the fountain
The statues hands

And there in her bronzed, moistened palm
Red carnation without you there, oh, I recall

Thank you for walking
Thank you for spending one day
With a stranger

Thank you for talking
And showing the way to a stranger

Thank you for walking
Thank you for talking
Thank you for talking

Thank you for walking
Thank you for talking
Thank you for talking

Thank you for walking
Thank you for talking
Thank you for talking
