bye bye hope you never find me your eyes always will remind me like the car in my backyard the box i never built fixing up just seems so hard the neglecting of my guilt so long hope i never see you i'm strong but i could never free you if i tried with all my might if i never shed a tear i'd be quivering with fright wishing i could disappear i'm weighing the fact and fiction diluting the truth with diction and empty promises bye bye put the wind beneath your heels your eyes know exactly how i feel like the prosecutors knives a virus that's contained like a cat with no more lives
just a memory remains

Simonton/drums)
