Drove to the place where we used to park
Just like always it was still and dark
But it was a little too much for my poor heart
Yesterday's mem'ries tore me apart

Today I walked down to that little cafe where we used to go
And I waited for our favorite booth the one we always sat in not too long ago
But when I sat down tears began to flow yesterday's mem'ries won't let me go

Anymore if there's anyone around when I start to cry
I just say excuse me but there's a mem'ry in my eyes Told my friends things were like they ought to be
That I was happy with new arms wrapped around me
But as I lie I'd cry they may could see Yesterday's mem'ries got hold of me
