You promised a new world you showed me and made me believe it did exist And now you pretend you don't know me and you say that world was a mess I woke up and the world was gone and I never felt so all alone
It was cold and dark without a dawn when I woke up and the world was gone [steel]
That world you promised you gave me honey I was there every time we kissed And when your world had enslaved me that world you promised went a mist
Then I woke up and the world was gone...
