

Hank Williams Jr. "Yours And His"

Visit "Yours And His" on MotoLyrics.com

The hour's late and so I try to walk in silence
Toward the house we've shared so many years
Suddenly I find my feet will go no farther
And I stand here in the darkness fighting tears

How could I forget that I no longer live here
When this is where my life's whole meaning is
Oh how could I forget the hurt the night you told me
Everything, once yours and mine, is yours and his

What made me slip into the shadows toward a window
When I knew I had no business there
I lost control and I couldn't keep from shouting
Hey that's our room, someone get him out of there

My shout was heard I hear my daughter crying
Wish that I could give her just one little kiss
But I must run before they find me out here prying
Everything, once yours and mine, is yours and his

Oh I must run before they find me out here prying
Everything, once yours and mine, is yours and his

Visit Hank Williams Jr. page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.