Ever Falling (Hans York/James Hurley)

I've been known to change my mind - Never know, never know
I like to see what I find - Where I go as I go
And as I watch endless days - Life slowly unfold Which of the ten thousand ways - Should I go, Should I go

Time will tell - I will find my way

Falling ever falling like the raindrop for the sea
So the path we follow wandering ever where it leads.

You tell me that it won't work -- Maybe so, maybe so.
There is a chance that I get hurt - Yes I know, yes I know
Sometimes I do wonder why - I believe, I believe I keep going on and try - So I'll see, yes I'll see

And time will tell - I will find my way

Falling ever falling like the raindrop for the sea
So the path we follow wandering ever where it leads.

Love comes around out of the the blue
Wonder and think about the moment
My eyes will fall on you

Day after day in my car - All alone, all alone
Nothing for me seems to far - Nothing's written in stone
A patch of blue colors the sky - Between clouds, between clouds
Know my sadness will go by - Without doubts, without doubts

Time will tell - Love will find a way

Falling ever falling like the raindrop for the sea
So the path we follow wandering ever where it leads.
Falling ever falling like the raindrop for the sea
So the path we follow wandering ever where it leads.
