"Faded"

You came into my life through a revolving door.
There for a short time and then you're there no more.
You will always be a small part of me,
But friends again we can never be.
You were there yesterday but now you're gone.
We used to be so happy and then something went wrong.
You were always there. You were a part of me.
Now you're nothing more than a faded memory.
See you every now and then in my photo book
And then I turn the page and you don't get a second look.
I must admit that I wonder what you're doing now.
Looking back to yesteryear I can't see how we got so crazy.
Sometimes I almost lost my mind.
We were young and foolish, were so naive.
Growing up can be so unkind when yourself you can not find.
Go ahead and live your own life knowing I don't blame
you.
I was also in the wrong.
Two birds of different feathers never meant to get along.
