She was a girl who had big dreams. Nothings gonna stop her, at least that's the way it seemed. But the dream is gone and the chance is too. The fight never started now the dream is through. I don't know what's wrong. Guess she just gave in. Saw the goal, not the road, thought she couldn't win. But she never left the ground. She never got a taste. Forever on her head as the dream she didn't chase. She was a girl with fire in her eyes. Sights set on reaching for the sky. But the fire is gone and the chance is too. The fight never started now the dream is through. Now she drinks every single night. Spends her money. I guess she lost sight of the hopes that she had held so high. Another hangover, another rung to climb.
