

Browne Jackson

"BIRDS OF ST. MARKS"

Visit "BIRDS OF ST. MARKS" on MotoLyrics.com

(from the Jackson Browne: Going Home video)

Oh how sadly sound the songs the queen must sing of dying

A prisoner upon her throne of melancholy sighing
If she could see her mirror now
She would be free of those who bow and Scrape the ground before her feet

Silently she walks among her dying midnight roses Watches as each moment goes that never really know us

And so it seems she doesn't care
If she has dreams of no one there
Within the shadows of her room

But all my frozen words agree, and say it's time to Call back, all the birds I sent to Fly behind her castle walls, and I'm
Weary of the nights I've seen
Inside these empty halls

Wooden lady turn and turn among my weary secrets
And wave within the hours past and other empty pockets
Maybe we've found what we have lost
When we've unwound so many crossed entangling Misunderstandings; but

All my frozen words agree and say it's time to Call back all the birds I sent to
Fly behind her castle walls, and I'm
Weary of the nights I've seen
Inside these empty walls

Visit Browne Jackson page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.