Four white walls, closing in around me
This is a curtain call, now I am nothing
This is not my fault, the world is out to get me
This is a curtain call, now I am nothing

I used to be, everything, you wanted me to be
Now my life, isn't right, all this darkness without a light
But I'm alive, I'm alive, I gave up and still survived
But my life, all my life, all my life just isn't right
My life still isn't right

You used to tell me I would feel, as good as dead
I took these pills so I could heal, this broken head
These four white walls, are closing in around me
This is a curtain call, now I am nothing, I am nothing

The worst in me, is all I see, I blame the world for everything
Now my life, is upside down, I stagger through this one star town
I'm looking for, so much more, the walls are closing but where's the door
I found the ceiling but where's the floor
One more shift at a convenience store
The walls are closing but where's the door

You used to tell me I would feel, as good as dead
I took these pills so I could heal, this broken head
These four white walls, are closing in around me
This is a curtain call, now I am nothing, I am nothing, I am nothing

Four white walls, closing in around me
This is a curtain call, now I am nothing

You used to tell me I would feel, as good as dead
I took these pills so I could heal, this broken head
These four white walls, are closing in around me
This is a curtain call, now I am nothing
