The long long day is through
The lights been replaced by blue
You lie awake in your room
Thinking about what to do
And everything depends
On one single chance
Should you accept this dance
The last ten years have flown
Days come and then they go
Is this your life you're meant to know
Is it too late for you to glow
Everything depends
On one single chance
Should you accept this dance
The long long day is through
Close your eyes and think about
What you can live without
Close your eyes and think about
What you can live without
