"Ultra Honesty"

I wasn't born to ruin your life I'd hardly met you when I made up my mind I'll take the blame if it makes it right You said that this would never come to light
She told me I'm going Don't touch that stolen moment She's got it I'm going Out the door this time I'm stormin'

The phone rings looks like we'll talk again I get through half of what I meant You saw me coming and you moved the time It didn't happen to me overnight

She told me I'm going Don't touch that stolen moment
She's got it I'm going This time I'm going

Ultra-honesty's what seems to be on your mind Well I remember right now to the second When we were both so alive Well now it's over and we're not creeped out We'll find a way to get up from down We caught a glimpse of everything And no regrets just simple memories It's spooky when we no longer try all the time
