Lyrics by P. Obermarck

Music by H. Alexander

Wolfen one,

You are my midday moon and I, your midnight sun-

Wolfen one,

Our journey's at an end but life has just begun-

When first we met, I thought

That what I felt could not be true-

But through the sharing of our hearts

There now is one where there was two-

Left to right,

The meeting of the darkened day and dawning night-

Drum to tune,

The joining of the shining sun and silver moon-

I knew the risk I took

When down beside you I had laid,

And lo, the breath of two new lives

Was well worth the price I paid-

Wolfen one,

Come dance with me and gaze back at which we have done-

Wolfen one,

We've sown the threads by which the future shall be spun-

Wolfen one,

You are my midday moon and I, your midnight sun-

Wolfen one-
