I know a place
Over the mountain
Where you can be free from
All the burdens you bear

The night will light up
The path that you travel
With no one to follow
You'll know where to go

Oh won't you come
Won't you come
Won't you come and be free
Won't you come
Won't you come
And be released

The rain will fall down
When the heat hangs on heavy
The sun will dry all tears
And remain on your face

A place for the weary
The strangers and the good thieves
Farther along
You'll find your peace

Oh won't you come
Won't you come
Won't you come and be free
Won't you come
Won't you come
And be released

Your body won't stop you
Your mind cannot fight for you
Come and find your truth.
