Tell me something I must know
The burning question why
Half a man is twice as much
When he's on the line

Happiness hard to get
Valentine in hand
None of them will ever guess
But you understand

How many men in a world of their own
There is no end to great unknown

Tell me something I must know
I'm outside looking in
Train of mirrors none so fair
Let the show begin

How many men in a world of their own
There is no end to great unknown

How many men in a world of their own
There is no end to great unknown
