Another time, you'll see my face when you're not looking and run to me to blindly ask what's on your mind

Another time, you'll find me in a game and ask if you can stay and play on But another time has come and already gone

Another time, your heart will sing the music that I'm hearing and find a way to answer all the questions in my eyes

Another time, you'll lift your head and see your sky that beckons you to try your wings at last
but another time has come, another time has passed

Another time, the words that I am saying now will lose their meaning Because by then, we'll share the love that now I'm only dreaming

Another time, you'll lose your doubts so you won't come around to share a few you left with me
But another time, I guess will never be Another time, you'll want to part and say you never knew me Some other night you'll cry yourself to sleep but you won't know it

Another time, you'll be the one who found her life not knowing that his thoughts upon his death But you'll understand another time, so I guess I'll save my breath

Another time...
