Iâ€™m not a victim of some feeble mind disease
Although some of my old friends would tend to disagree
I know these chemicals will get the best of me
Iâ€™m not saying that I want to quit it just makes it hard to breath
But who needs lungs when you just bought a brand new pen
And thereâ€™s stacks and stacks of envelopes just waiting to be sent
I looked through my closet and I found those magazines
I circled all the writers that I one day hoped to meet

Donâ€™t get me wrong I donâ€™t mind getting bad reviews
In fact sometimes theyâ€™re the only ones who try and speak the truth
But there are others who just love to cross that line
Hoping that their viciousness will boost traffic on their site
Like that kid who asked me if I knew I couldnâ€™t sing
Thatâ€™s like asking a blind man if he knows that he canâ€™t see

Next time try putting down something we donâ€™t know
Like how they gave a writing job to someone so damn slow

And then you went and said you didnâ€™t understand
How a girl so beautiful could love a guy like him
Now thatâ€™s a question you should be saving for your wife
And while youâ€™re on the subject ask her where she was last night
Because she didnâ€™t go to her sisterâ€™s for a drink
She was backstage at our show sitting on my knee
Telling us about how you walked in on her

With her hands inside her pants and singing all the words

Those very lyrics that you tried to criticize

But as we expected you misquoted half the lines
I guess this is a game that we both just have to play
IÂ'll keep putting records out and you keep throwing them away
