When will I believe
That my life isn't a fairytale?
So I suggest you leave.
Cause' life isn't a fairytale.

I fell for you that night.
The night I still believed in fairy tales.
It was dark; you were my light...
I still believed in fairy tales.

Tonight will be the night
That we both say goodbye.
Cause' I have got no time
For all your stupid lies.
Tonight will be the night
That I will take off my princess dress.
Cause how can I be a princess,
When I have no prince?

You spoke to me, I melted.
I never thought you'd betray me.
You danced with me, I melted.
I never wanted you to leave.
But I guess now I know that
You can't judge by looks.
Cause you've lied so much that
There was a thousand chances,
That you took.

So tonight will be the night
That we both say goodbye.
Cause' I have got no time
For all your stupid lies.
Tonight will be the night
That I will take off my princess dress.
Cause how can I be a princess,
When I have no prince?

How could I have not seen,
That you were not the one for me?
And how could I have doubted a lot,

That you would never go breaking my heart?
So now I know that my life ain't a fairytale,
You aren't my prince.
And now I know that I ain't a princess,
But I have honestly loved you since:
You danced with me, you spoke to me,
You made me melt. But then I took a risk,
And nothing can explain how I felt...

-Less music-

Tonight will be the night
That we both say goodbye.
Cause' I have got no time
For all your stupid lies.

-More music-

Tonight will be the night
That we both say goodbye.
Cause' I have got no time
For all your stupid lies.
Tonight will be the night
That I will take off my princess dress.
Cause how can I be a princess,
When I have no prince?

-No music-

Tonight will be the night
That I will take off my princess dress.
Cause how can I be a princess,
When I have no prince?
