Like a fire burning in the kitchen sink
Like a choir that can't agree on what to sing
Like a wild raging river that just can't find the will You change your mind a thousand times, deciding to stand still

Better to live than to explain
Better to write than to have read
Better to cope than to complain
Better in your hands that in your head
Easier done that said

Like a dying flower that just don't give a damn
Like a higher power nobody cares to understand
Like a horse on a merry-go-round spinnin at a county fair
Just running round in circles not gettin anywhere

Better to guide than criticize Better to lead than to be led Better to act than to analyze
Better in your hands than in your head
Easier done than said

Like a tree that doesn't't't grow cause it's afraid of the sky
Like a lamp that doesn't't't glow and doesn't't't wonder why
Like a cigarette that's burnin on the side of the road
A little less concern and no telling where you go

Better to live than to explain
Better to write than to have read
Better to cope than to complain
Better in your hands than in your head
Easier done than said
