The last day that she was alive she asked me to detail
it
The distance that she wore for the night explained why she'd want me
It took a thousand to admit that she gave her dying breath to it
This will forever and always be the most eventful day we had

Her only solice was that I promised to architect a way to make this right
Blood spilled in the oceans and tied me to devotions
Please just offer me the life that she once lost

The dead dress that she wore... the deep red of the cause still clears the haze of what she meant as she gave her dying breath to it Now we conceal ourselves in time to end the most eventful day we had...

Her only solice was that I promised to architect a way to make this right
Blood spilled in the oceans and tied me to devotions
Please just offer me the life that she once lost

She loved here, so I'll be safe in this love here
For in this I'll be chosen, it's fallen that way

Her only solice was that I promised to architect a way to make this right
Blood spilled in the oceans and tied me to devotions
