[spoken intro:]

darling, as I write this letter I know you can hear me wherever you are I'm sorry I missed you that last day but I know you'll be glad to be back in the city the weather's been cruel and cloudy I saw stars last night for the first time in weeks and it reminded me of summer but by this morning, the clouds have closed in again and the sky is doing its thing pitter-patter the raindrops fall summer traded us in, that's all where we went to I can't recall but it's new through the winter I just select what I'm into I don't know yet but I know that I won't forget 'til I do in the future I see your face smiling back from the same old place nothing left to erase but the love we knew you can change your feelings or change your shoes even change the evening new but nothing changes within me without you there's a time in your life when you find someone who can love you like no one else you've known in that time of your life

the whole world lives for you and you give up all that you own so don't feel sad if it seems our time passed like a dream you and I done the best that we could and like you,

I know I'm own up doing my time but the time that I'm doing is good

I believe real love born to be what we feel 'til the feelings we are come true and like love, I will hear 'til my meaning is clear and the feelings I am are you there'll come a time in your life

when you find someone who can love you for all you have been
let the time of your life begin
