I'll quickly leave my room
Because even if I stand forever, "the truth" won't disappear
Just like the time I was seen stumbling
I wonder if it would be better to follow

You're always so unfair
(That's not just flattery)
I want to see you
It's just me jumping to conclusions again

Will I become loved just dropping hints?
Will I be hated just for being a liar?
(You said my love don't mean a thing. How much I love
you
That's 'cause you don't know how much I love you)

The sun that's gone bone dry
Might be wishing for rain everyday
The feeling of believing that and getting rained on Isn't a bad thing, is it?

"I feel like I can't win
You're always so strong
And you don't cry"
That's your mistake

The time I understood the situation
You're theories of idealism are irritating
(You said my love don't mean a thing. How much I love
you
That's 'cause you don't know how much I love you)

Don't blame me
Weren't you running at the wrong pace?
It's just that this time
Our strides didn't quite match

After awaking from a dream, I want to sleep again
Realists probably wouldn't understand
(You said my love don't mean a thing. How much I love you)

That's 'cause you don't know how much I love you)

We aren't really talking about the same things, are we?
If it gets unpleasant, let's say bye-bye to tomorrow
That's the way it is
If I'm gonna lose no matter how long I wait
I'll start again, and say bye-bye to now
That's the way it is
