The little boy can't trust in women
They cause in little hearts a lot of sorrow
But even a little boy may stare at a window in the evening
Out of which a dream princess is looking

Behind the windowpane behind the windowpane
My girl is looking out

Of all women she's the prettiest I know
Even small breasts I tolerate in my princess
The hat is perfect and the posture is also good
Behind the windowpale my girl is looking out

Oh Glendora oh Glendora
Oh Glendora how I adore you

One night I passed by the window again Already some some guy was covering her with garnments
He covered her head and everything else
Exchanging her with a dressed up display dummy

Behind the windowpale behind the windowpale
Someone else has stolen my girl
